

THE HOLY EQUATION OF LOVE by Audrey Hope

A love relationship is...

- A blessed opportunity to know yourself in God.
- A holy battle to your own divine victory.
- A heavenly mirror to reflect you to wholeness.
- A high challenge to heal your own heart.
- An undiscovered illusion, if you think it is about the other person.
- A holy equation of $1 + 1 = 1$.

Can you take it? Do you dare? Do you possess the guts and courage and stamina to pass the high test of love?

The heart, in its own language will take you on a wild journey, away from all rationality, and sense, and peace, and shape shift you into madness. It beats to its own drum, until, with enough pain and confusion, you will finally listen to a new philosophy, a high spirituality, with a high reason and a high math. The holy equation of love is $1+1=1$.

The war of man and woman is the battle to love oneself, truly and supreme. We knock on each others walls, until there is a break in its defense. Look in the mirror. Observe what he/she has done to you. See the holy formula of love work inside your soul.

Thank each other for the chaos of the heart. In the grace of time, love finds understanding. Time is kind to love. In empty space, it heals things. It finally teaches, when all is said and done, that we need our own wholeness. The best you and the best me, is the only chance for divine union.

Where do we go to find love? You must be the love you seek. Always be in love. Then he/she will float into your life, like the river follows the wind. Heaven awaits after the tears and the storms of love.

Be brave in the challenge of love. Take its lessons, and its pain, and heal thyself. Then in the sun of morning, after much understanding, join hands.